Dwelley brought up a template he found online that gave an outline of how to control odor. The Planning Board agreed that it was going to be a good idea to have criteria for the planning board to use to help address the odor. A question was raised about outdoor grows and how to regulate it? No good answer was available. Cauldwell brought up he is going to a class in Saco Maine sponsored by MMA to talk about Marijuana laws. The Planning Board will talk more about this issue when Cauldwell attends the class and reports back to the Planning Board.

4. Other Business:

   How to determine a gravel pit the Planning Board considers any area that moves more than 100 yards of gravel during the year it would be considered a gravel pit. Another question was addressed was commercial and or home occupation area on the Quite Harbor Rd if the equipment is stored at the location? Webber said that if the building is attached by his home its considered home occupation. But Cauldwell made the point that a craftsman stores his tools at his business but does work everywhere else, would it be considered a commercial site. Marble said if he has any complaints he will have to address it and let the planning board know.
